

Hello!

First and foremost, thank you for the time you are giving us.

In this small text I'll be presenting myself (aka Wasteyouth aka Deployment Strategies) and my partner in some "crimes" (Joanna Jago).

Wasteyouth and Joanna Jago met back in 2009 thanks to the dancefloor and to techno music. Soon, we developed a strong relationship among electronic music. From 2010 to 2013, we founded the collective and electronic music community "Are Friends Elektrik?", setting our mind to discover and share music, gathering like-minded individuals and hosting underground parties where the music was the common denominator.

Together we also curate the weekly radio show "Resistance Is Futile" currently aired on Seance Radio in the UK.

Wasteyouth (vitorsousa1980@gmail.com or info@deploymentstrategies.com)

I am Vitor and originally I'm from Porto, Portugal. The last 2 years I lived in Barcelona, Spain where I completed my studies in Audio Engineering. I moved to Berlin recently so that I could be closer to people who share the same passion as I do for electronic music.

My motto dates back to 2006 and goes as simple as "We just want to play music... loud... in a dark place". The 'we' you detect on that quote comes from the fact that Wasteyouth started as a duo. Since 2011 the project became a one person task but the ambition stayed the same... being able to listen and assemble music I admire, in sessions, with proper sound. Things were pushed further by trying to share this passion with more people, which led to more interactivity online and to a scarce but striking dozen of live performances at parties and places such as:

- Illegal warehouse "Are Friends Elektrik?" parties (Porto, Portugal)
- Club Gare (Porto, Portugal)
- Armazém do Chá (Porto, Portugal)
- Taboo Bar (Porto, Portugal)
- MUDMU Clubbin' event (Porto, Portugal)
- Club Chic (Porto, Portugal)
- Bacalhoeiro (Lisbon, Portugal)
- 74 Bar (Vigo, Spain)
- L.A.B. [Live Analogue Beats] @ A.I.R.A.M. (Barcelona, Spain)
- Las Cuevas del Sorte (Barcelona, Spain)

Deployment Strategies is my music production side project, which started in 2013. Here is where I discover sound not as a dj but as a creator. Recently I had a release coming out on the label Suck House Lovers from Italy. There's also some other unreleased tracks which are available on my Bandcamp page.

Joanna Jago (joannajago@gmail.com)

Joanna was born in Cornwall in the U.K. and spent most of her life in Portugal, between Faro and Porto. She lived for the last 2 years in Barcelona and recently moved to Berlin as well. In 2007 she started dj'ing in a small club in Faro, with musical sessions that went from trip-hop to minimal. At first as a warmup act, but rapidly gaining all night sessions, which are her favourite.... to have time to construct something, and kidnap her listeners on a musical voyage.

Went back to Porto in 2009, where she had studied architecture in the early 2000, and started dj'ing in and around the local music scene, to culminate with the "Are Friends Elektrik?" parties. Her style is now more defined than before but the objective still the same: to be able to make her audience's heartbeats pulsate to the rhythm of techno and dance with the feeling of being in a unique place for a unique moment.

Joanna's appearances as a dj happened at parties and places such as:

- Illegal warehouse "Are Friends Elektrik?" parties (Porto, Portugal)
- Armazém do Chá (Porto, Portugal)
- Taboo Bar (Porto, Portugal)
- Era Uma Vez Bar (Porto, Portugal)
- Rock RendezVous (Porto, Portugal)
- Left Bar (Lisbon, Portugal)
- Dromedario (Sagres, Portugal)
- Nordik Bar (Faro, Portugal)
- L.A.B. [Live Analogue Beats] @ A.I.R.A.M. (Barcelona, Spain)
- Las Cuevas del Sorte (Barcelona, Spain)
- Events for Nokia, Ford and FHM
